

A Column Or So of CHATTER About the Photo Plays

Mae Murray, having finished "The Right to Love," sailed last week with her husband, Robert E. Leonard, director of Cosmopolitan productions, for a vacation in Europe.

Mrs. William Vaughn Moody, widow of the author of "The Faith Healer," has arrived at Hollywood to assist in the production of her husband's play on the screen. Milton Sills and Mabel Julienne Scott will have two of the leading roles.

Jean de Briac, Sarah Bernhardt's leading man in France before the war, has an important part in Clyde Fitch's "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson," which Billie Burke is doing at the Paramount studio in New York.

Ferdinand Berdorf, the San Francisco landscape artist, has been engaged by Cecil B. DeMille to paint a series of eighty art title backgrounds for "Something to Think About." They will be reproduced by the Loren Taylor quadri-color process.

"No more privacy than a goldfish" has a rival in the phrase, "No more privacy than a movie star at Coney Island." Thomas Meighan and Fair Blaney had to go to Luna Park last week to make some scenes for "The Frontier of the Stars," and their official love-making was viewed by at least a thousand eyes besides the inexorable eye of the camera.

Immediately on finishing "The Frontier of the Stars" in New York, Thomas Meighan left for Hollywood to commence work on "Easy Street." For the past year he has been a transcontinental traveler, having made "The Prince Chap" at Hollywood, "Civilian Clothes" in the East, then "Conrad in Quest of His Youth" on the west coast before coming East to make "The Frontier of the Stars." On completion of "Easy Street" in September the star will go to St. Louis to appear personally at the opening of the city's largest theater.

Filming has begun at Hollywood of the new Paramount-Ince comedy starring Douglas MacLean. It is based on Charles Belmont Davis' story "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." Beatrice Burnham will play opposite Mr. MacLean.

"Scotty Bob," great grandson of "Shipton Brilliant," a prize-winning English sheep dog brought over by J. P. Morgan for breeding purposes, the Paramount star, as a playmate for his three-year-old son, William Wallace Reid, Jr. Daddy Reid bought the dog for a thousand dollars from the daughter of the late "Lucky" Baldwin.

In order to get under water scenes for "Deep Waters," Maurice Tourneur built and sunk a concrete ship and then went down with his camera man in a diving bell to get pictures of the rescue of a fireman from a compartment in the sunken vessel.

Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, has purchased the Charles Frohman play, "Cousin Kate," and announces that it will be made into a special screen production with Alice Joyce as the star. The screen rights cost Mr. Smith a figure on a par with the top photoplay rights' prices of the past year.

Joe Ryan and Jenn Paige are proving so popular in "Hidden Dangers," their first serial that Albert E. Smith and Cleveland Moffett, the authors, are writing a new episode-play for these co-stars. It is an entirely different type of story from "Hidden Dangers," which has become universally known as the "Jekyll-Hyde serial."

Lucille Carlisle will again be seen as Larry Semon's leading lady in a comedy he is now making on the West Coast, and which will be released late this fall. The thrills and stunts in "The Stage Hand," the comedy completed by Larry about a week ago, proved almost too much for Miss Carlisle, and it was thought she might have to rest for three months before going through any more strenuous scenes with Larry. The lure of the game proved too strong, however, so Miss Carlisle is at it again.

Will Rogers, it is rumored, is dieting. No, it's not dyspepsia, or gout, but merely a few pounds of flesh the cowboy-star is trying to get rid of.

Frederick Peters, who plays the seven-foot giant in Edgar's Sunday Courtship, now being made at the Goldwyn Studios, was athletic instructor at the Norfolk Naval Training Station during the Spanish-American War. In 1905 and '06 he was heavyweight boxing champion of the U. S. Navy.

When Jack Pickford finishes the Goldwyn picture "Just Out of College," he will go to Europe for a two months' pleasure trip accompanied by his wife, Olive Thomas.

D. W. Griffith's life has been insured for $500,000 for the benefit of his new company, which was recently organized under the laws of the State of Maryland, with a capitalization of $50,000,000.

"Lahoma," Edgar Lewis' latest production for Pathe, which will be released this month, is an abbreviation of Oklahoma, where many of the scenes are laid, and shows this popular star at his best.

Ora Carew will join the Lasky forces as leading woman in De Mille Productions upon the completion of "Beyond the Crossroads," the Clermont Photoplay production. Her first picture for De Mille, will be "His Friend and His Wife."

Alice Lake has begun work on "Body and Soul." Charles Swickard is directing.

Carl Herard has been engaged by Metro to support Alice Lake in "Body and Soul."

Ray Smallwood is directing Nazimova in "Madam Peacock," her new Metro production.

Gladys White has the leading feminine role in support of Lee Kohlman and Rudolph Christians in "The Watchmaker."

Hamilton Revelle has been signed to play one of the leads in "Kismet," the Robertson-Cole production starring Otis Skinner.

They Have Signed With Me
HENCEFORTH the productions made by these famous stars and directors, whose actual signatures are reproduced here on our contracts with them, will be controlled exclusively by the Crandall theaters.

These great artists are my partners now. They refused, flatly, to sign their names to any contract with anyone which would restrict their efforts, put a minimum on the money they can spend to create the best in motion pictures, or which would sacrifice their genius for the dividends craved by big money cliques. They are independent producers—free agents in every way. You, as a theater patron, are their only dictator. My enterprises are strictly a home-town business. I am a tax payer and a local booster. My theaters are independent, and because they are free from outside control these celebrated stars have joined hands with me.

Stingily, and collectively, we are independents, with quality apperment, determined to give you the best in entertainment.
